

The Story of James

By: Zak Elguindi

This is James. He is a student who enjoys working out in his free time. As his schedule has gotten busier, he's struggling to find time to work out.

James goes to the gym one day and realizes how crowded it is. He grows angry and storms out of the gym in frustration.

James is brooding in his frustration when he runs into his friend; William, who then shows James his super cool app that tells William how many people are in the gym at once.

James is amazed at the brilliance of the app and decides to download it himself. While on the app, he noticed that the app said the gym wasn't crowded, so he decided to go. Sure enough, the gym was nearly empty!

James was so happy to be able to work out in peace again. He enjoys that the app tracks the data of the gym every week, so he can predict which times will be the least busiest.

2 years have passed, and James has now won gold at the bodybuilding olympic event. He credits all of his success to the amazing app his friend William introduced him to, as he was able to know the best time to work out, thus maximizing his potential.
